THANKS FOLKS!

I'm a little late expressing my appreciation to the people of Grayling this fall on the second anniversary of my operation of the Grayling Laundry and Dry Cleaners. However, my gratitude is no less sincere.

You are my customers! Some of you enjoy our complete laundry and dry cleaning service; others in business use our linen service; some take advantage of our rug cleaning service or one of our several other cleaning aids, but you are all my customers and the success of my business depends on pleasing you!

This we are constantly striving to do by adding modern equipment and methods which have been tried and proven by the American Institute of Laundering, by employing better personnel and by giving you the kind of service you want.

This second year which ended October 1st, has been a most gratifying one to me. I'm sold on my job of serving you again this next year and hope that we may continue to deserve your valued patronage, whether it be of the laundry, dry cleaning or linen service department.

Industrial Statesmanship

The Texaco Star reports that, "A major step toward easing the present world-wide oil shortage, including that of the United States, was brought closer to realization by a recent announcement that a Mediterranean terminus for the long-heralded trans-Arabian pipeline had been selected."

A number of American oil companies are back of Arabian oil development. The pipeline, which will be one of the biggest steps so far taken to make the oil available, will be an epic project, comparable to the fabulous wartime pipelines which were built in the United States. It will be 1,030 miles long, and when it is completed late in 1949, it will carry an initial capacity of 300,000 barrels of oil each day for delivery to Europe. Later, as production of oil is expanded, the flow will be increased. And its initial load will be equal to that of the Big Inch line, and 60,000 barrels greater than Little Inch.

From the American point of view, the line will relieve the unprecedented demands now being made on our petroleum resources and production facilities. The whole Saudi-Arabian project is turning into one of those pioneering achievements on which free enterprise seems to have a monopoly. Every step of the development has brought with it new and difficult problems of geography, supply, costs, labor, international relations and so on. And every problem has been met by American engineering skill and industrial statesmanship. Saudi-Arabian oil will be used for the service and betterment of the entire world. The American oil industry has become an international influence in the best sense of the word.

Urge New Method Of Trout Planting

With the fishing pressure on the nation's trout streams expected to reach an all-time high next spring and summer, sportsmen who have their fingers on the pulse of the fishing situation are worried over whether or not our streams "can take it." And most of them agree that the streams won't be able to take it unless our conservation departments and game commissions step up their programs for trout planting and stream management.

Since most phases of trout planting and stream management have been hotly debated for many years, Clay Schoenfeld of Madison, Wis., recently made a survey of many of the trout fishing states in hopes of finding the facts that would take these topics out of the argumentative confusion that has, in some cases, bogged down constructive work. His facts are made public in the current issue of Outdoorsman Magazine.

Should legal-size trout or fry be planted? Do all streams need stocking annually? What is the best season of the year for planting trout? In answering these questions, Mr. Schoenfeld discloses in Outdoorsman that many states are wasting money through misguided appropriations for stocking streams that cannot successfully be stocked. By the same token, other streams that need regular plantings are overlooked. Also, the writer finds that far too many states direct insufficient funds into their programs for stream study and stream management.

Actually, as Mr. Schoenfeld so pointedly shows in Outdoorsman, if we are to have a fair share of the anglers with full creels, state officials must make comprehensive surveys of the streams in their territories to learn which can be stocked and which streams should be left alone. This, plus proper stream management, should in some measure give the vast army of fishermen reasonable assurance of successful catches.

Prissy's Got a Man! (Maybe)

Yesterday Sis Martin, our librarian, found an article cut from their file copy of the Clarion. When she compared it with another copy that I gave her she found it was my column on "How to Keep a Husband Happy."

Nothing unusual about that. Except the last person seen reading the paper was Prissy Hoskins (our town's proverbial Old Maid)!

Well, if Prissy has finally got a man, more power to her. And more tolerance to both of them... because that's what my column was about: Tolerance of a husband's taste for old hats, old pipes, old friends, and mellow beer. And tolerance on the husband's part of a wife's tastes and habits.

From where I sit, nobody begrudges Prissy taking that clipping from the Clarion. But I'd like to hint that if she'd just subscribe, she'd get my thoughts on tolerance firsthand. And in return I'll treat her to a glass of beer.

CHILD HEALTH

Moves Constantly

Forward in Michigan

Medical care also has its problems of supply and demand. Insofar as this problem relates to child health, the medical profession of Michigan has financed an extensive study which evaluates child health services in relation to needs. It is through such investigations as this, voluntarily initiated and paid for, that the medical doctors of Michigan are continually obtaining factual data on which to act for the greater good of the greater number. Child health is but one of the innumerable fronts on which your doctor of medicine is moving in cooperation with all other health workers in Michigan.

BUT HENRY HAS BOTH HANDS BUSY NOW... trying to keep the old bus on the road because his wheels are out-of-line. Misaligned wheels cause "road weave," forcing the driver to "fight" the steering wheel. Out-of-line wheels eat up rubber, too, because the tires are literally dragged sideways down the road. It isn't only annoying—it's expensive.

Come in today and let us align your wheels with our precision John Bean Wheel Alignment System. Savings in tire wear alone will more than pay for the job.

res Lumbering

ANN ARBOR—Almost two and one half tons of business records covering the exciting period of Michigan's lumbering boom have just been received by the University of Michigan.

Dr. F. Clever Bald, assistant director of the Michigan Historical Collections where the records are filed, and Secretary Mrs. John Kennedy are shown looking over one of the scores of huge books with a part of the collection piled in the background.

The records are of the business interests of Louis Sands, a leading industrialist and lumberman in Manistee who died in 1906. Covering a period from 1883 to 1930, the records report the activities in logging camps and lumbering mills in the Manistee area.

Also included are records of a cooper shop in which barrels and kegs were made, a salt works with a capacity of 2,200 barrels daily, a bank and a lumbering railroad. The railroad hauled logs from Starvation Lake to Sharon in Kalkaska County.

The Barrier
Collapses
By JOHN ADLINGTON

THE Rev. Mr. Jones claimed that the stronger the relationship between two men, the wider the rift if anything happened to break the bond. He said it was human nature, and he liked to tell about Frank Holly and George Clyde to prove his point.

The two men had been neighbors and the closest of friends all their lives. It was the same with their wives, and when Jim Holly and Betty Clyde came on the scene, the two youngsters grew up as much at home in each other's houses as in their own. It didn't seem possible that anything could come between the two men. Yet they did fall out, and the cause was so trivial folks couldn't believe it.

The Clyde farm and the Holly place adjoined each other, sort of back to back, and the line fence between them was an old rail affair that a new-born lamb could have climbed over easily almost any place. So one spring, just before seeding time, the two men got together and decided to replace it with a brand new wire fence. When they had finished both men stood around telling each other what a neat job they'd done.

"She's as straight as a gun-barrel," says George Clyde, squinting down the row of posts.

"Sure is," agreed Frank Holly, taking a look. "But your place has grown a little. We're over about a foot too far on my side."

He said it joking like, and if George had let it pass there would have been no harm done. But one word led to another, and first thing they knew both men were yelling and shouting at the top of their voices. When each of them finally grabbed up his tools and headed for the barn, the most beautiful friendship in Reefer county was busted wide open. And no one could do anything about it.

Their wives tried hard enough. But it was no use. The truth was both knew they were acting like idiots, but each was too stubborn to make the first move. After the quarrel they both got so cranky there was no living with them. And they took it out on the two youngsters.

BUT human nature is human nature, and before the year was over Jim and Betty were meeting in town on Saturday nights, and sort of hanging around together after church. Everybody could see the way it was with them, except their fathers. The Rev. Mr. Jones tried to get in a word with Frank and George on the matter, but it didn't do a bit of good, and there's no telling what way things would have gone if it hadn't been for Frank's old bay mare.

George Clyde was at the barn doctoring some shoats when his wife and Betty came rushing in. "Mrs. Holly just pho. J." said all out of breath. "She says she was down the lane when she saw their old bay mare on her back, all tangled up in the line fence. Frank and Jim are in town, and she's afraid the poor thing will cut herself to pieces time they get back. She thought maybe you'd do something about it."

Everybody could see the way it was with Jim and Betty.

"Holly can look after his own stock," says George. "Why, Dad!" says Betty horrified, and the next minute she tears out of the barn as fast as she can. She stops long enough at the drive shed to grab a hammer and a pair of wire cutters, then disappears down the lane. It doesn't take long for George and his wife to follow her. By the time they reached the back pasture, Betty had released the poor beast that had caused all the commotion. Mrs. Holly was there, too, fussing over both of them. And that's the way it was when Jim and his Dad rattled up in the truck.

It was George who rose to the occasion.

"Frank," he says, a bit on the shaky side. "This danged fence broke us up, but we'd have less sense than that dumb brute yonder if we let it keep these youngsters apart."

For once, Frank seemed at a loss for words but he contrived a grin.

lieve that some girls are smoking in the lavatories at noon and other times. We cannot ignore or tolerate this at any time and must handle such cases severely.

2. Gum, comic books, cap and water guns, are to be left at home as they are in no way needed at school.

3. All pupils who live within reasonable walking distance or who can go home for lunch are to do so. 173 students come on buses or drive and must stay at home. We haven't room or facilities to have those who can go home at school during the noon hour.

4. The doors are not opened until 8:30 A. M. and 12:45 at noon. Students should plan their time and not arrive at school before those times. They also should leave just as soon as they are excused.

5. Due to the fact that the great majority of students returned to school 15 minutes or more early each noon the faculty has decided that we might better begin school at 1:00 instead of 1:15. This policy began today and will mean that the pupils will be dismissed 15 minutes early in the afternoon as well as coming early at noon.

6. In the high school the time between classes has been shortened to reduce the wasting of time and confusion. Students will have plenty of time to get from one class to another.

7. Be sure and read the report cards carefully. They are sent home every six weeks and tell a pretty good story of the progress of our young folks.

8. Parents are invited to the annual Open House given by the Grayling staff on Wednesday, November 12, 1947, at 7:30 P. M.

9. The staff is sponsoring the Hunter's Ball on Friday, November 14. Proceeds to be used to complete the pledge for the Memorial Athletic Field.

BAND NOTES

Recent additions to the band's music files are several well known compositions including "Stars and Stripes Forever" by John Phillips Sousa, "In a Persian Market" by Ketelbey, "Our Director" a march by F. E. Bigelow, and several others.

The band members received this music as a welcome change after practicing for the past few weeks exclusively on the selections played at its recent concert.

"In a Persian Market" has an original quality which is vastly different from anything the band has attempted until now. This selection presents a challenge to the versatility and skill of the band as a whole.

"Stars and Stripes Forever" is considered one of the greatest marches ever written. It was composed by John Phillips Sousa, who for many years served as leader of the U. S. Marine Corps Band. The band is now striving to perfect their playing of this composition which has several extremely difficult passages which must be overcome.

The present favorite of all band, though, is "Christmas Eve" which is a medley of most famous of our Christmas carols including "Silent Night," "Hark the Herald Angels Sing," and several others. Mr. Chris has also ordered "White Christmas," a favorite of recent years which should appeal to audience and band members alike. Christmas songs will be presented between acts of the Senior p December 17.

OUR meat merchandising policy is to make available to our customers the best meat products obtainable. A&P's Super Right meats are all U.S. Grade "Good" or "Choice." Due to current economic conditions, we have decided to add another type of meat to our line — "Heavy Calves." You will find the meat cuts from "Heavy Calves" to be tender and economical.
